AIB-AXYS Weekly Fixed Income Note

1st December 2025

Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 186.7% from 180.9% recorded the previous week. Absolute demand remained skewed towards the 364-day paper – which received bids amounting to KES 26.35 Bn against KES 10.00Bn offered, signaling investors' continued preference for longer-tenor instruments with higher yields. The 91-day paper also registered strong interest, receiving KES 17.38Bn compared to the KES 4.00Bn on offer. Meanwhile, the 182-day paper underperformed once again, attracting only KES 5.15Bn against KES 10.00Bn offered, indicating muted appetite for the mid-tenor paper as investors gravitated toward duration and yield.
- The government is looking to raise KES 40.00Bn through the re-opening of the SDB1/2011/030 and FXD1/2021/025 bonds, which are earmarked for budgetary support in FY25/26. The bonds have a quoted tenor to maturity of 15.2 yrs and 20.4 yrs while the coupon rates are set at 12.0000% and 13.9240% respectively. Bidding is set to close on 3rd December 2025. We will be issuing further bidding guidance.
- Safaricom is looking to raise KES 15.0 Bn through its MTN Program under Tranche 1. The notes have a tenor to maturity of 5 years and a fixed return rate of 10.4%, which is tax exempt. This is a tactical move to tap into the capital markets for funding at a lower cost, in our view. To participate (here).
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate witnessed a 0.14bps w/w downtick to 7.78%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper stagnated at 7.80%, whilst the 364-day paper declined by 0.30 bps. Looking ahead, we expect yields to continue trending downwards in the near term, however, now at a slower pace.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded increased 76.3% w/w to KES 61.61 Bn from KES 34.94 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed a decrease of 96.76 bps w/w to 1164.71 points, driven largely by an increase in the 4-year benchmark yields. The 4-year yield rose the most by 77.58 bps w/w while the 10-year yield eased the most by 24.30 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers increased by an average of 3.75 bps w/w.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling appreciated slightly against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.82 from 129.87 the previous week, reflecting a marginal w/w appreciation of 0.1%. The Shilling's YTD depreciation against the USD stood at 0.4%.
- Official forex reserves decreased by 0.5% w/w to USD 11,951 Mn from USD 12,009 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 5.2 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

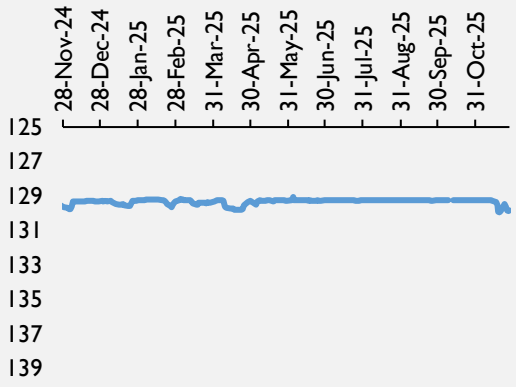

Kenya Consumer Price Index - November 2025

- November's inflation came in at 4.5%, in line with our in-house expectations of 4.5%-4.7% and marking a slight decline from 4.6% in October 2025. This means that consumer prices were 4.5% higher than in November 2024, signaling continued price stability within the CBK's 2.5%–7.5% target band.
- The price increase was primarily driven by higher costs in Food and Non-Alcoholic Beverages (7.7%), Transport (5.1%), and Housing, Water, Electricity, Gas & Other Fuels (1.9%). Together, these three divisions account for over 57% of the CPI basket and therefore remain the strongest drivers of overall inflation trends. On a month-on-month basis, the CPI rose by 0.2%, from 146.84 in October to 147.08 in November, with core inflation easing to 2.3% and non-core inflation rising to 10.1%.
- Food prices showed mixed movements during the month. The price of a 2kg packet of fortified maize flour declined to KES 162.11 from KES 168.56, while onion prices increased to KES 111.37 from KES 106.21 per kilogram. Electricity costs eased slightly, with 200 kWh consumption falling to KES 5,676.22 from KES 5,764.15, and 50 kWh dropping to KES 1,293.82 from KES 1,315.80. Petrol prices remained unchanged at KES 185.59 per litre.
- Looking ahead, inflation is expected to remain anchored within the CBK target, supported by easing electricity costs. However, upside risks persist due to volatile global oil markets and the potential impact of the easing monetary policy which may gradually loosen financial conditions and influence price movements in the medium term.

Liquidity

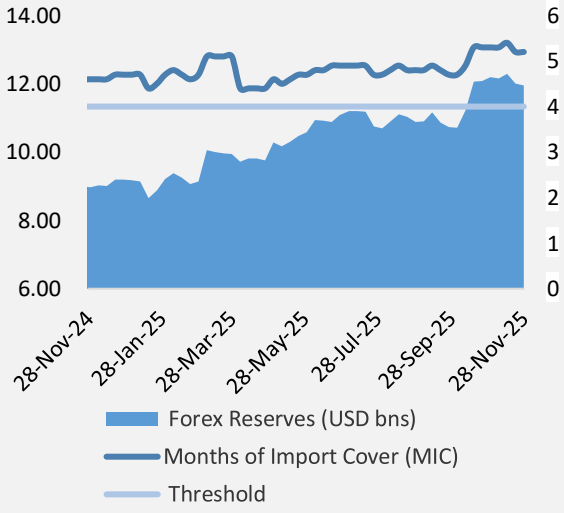

- Liquidity conditions across the money market tightened, as evidenced by the 1.2 bps increase in the average interbank rate. The rate, however, remained relatively unchanged at 9.2%.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

1st December 2025

• Global Markets Commentary

❖ Global markets finally caught a breath last week. After considerable sell offs witnessed the previous week driven by heavy concerns around AI valuations and swelling capex, sentiment shifted and renewed optimism pushed most indices back into positive territory. The Fed's path in the upcoming December meeting had also dragged equities performance down, with increasing odds that the Fed would keep rates steady, keeping in mind the need to await economic data after the government re-opening, which would enhance clarity of the economy and rising inflation levels (stemming from introduced tariffs). However, last week, sentiment shifted as the market kept track of recent public signals by different Fed members. There was increased conviction in the market that a rate cut in December might actually materialize. The latest Fed member to send a dovish signal was New York Fed President Williams, who noted that the labor market is still softening and inflation has not risen to the much-anticipated levels, calling for a rate cut in December. The Fed will be going to this meeting without November jobs data, which will be delayed owing to the government shutdown. The Fed is now compelled to depend on the available tangible data. Going by the latest Fed Beige Book, the labor market is softening, with employers reporting slow hiring and reduced hours; this increases the odds of a rate cut

❖ Select global indices closed in the green while nursing losses from the previous week, with a median return of 3.2% from a discount of 2.6% the previous week, where heavy clouds of AI overvaluation concerns engulfed the market, sending bearish sentiments across key markets. Renewed hopes for rate cuts in the December Fed meeting were a key catalyst to reignite the rally, after another Fed member, New York Fed President Williams, gave dovish remarks calling for a rate cut in December. Broadly, there is an increased conviction of over 80.0% by the close of the week that the Fed would cut rates. In the US, S&P 500 and Dow Jones added 3.7% and 3.2% respectively (despite a shorter trading week as the market remained closed for Thanksgiving Holiday on Thursday). Mag 7 did the heavy lifting considering their market weightings, with most names posting solid weekly gains. However, we noted NVIDIA, a key AI market leader, was reading from a different hymn book (AI sector overvaluation concerns still pulling down the share albeit upbeat results), posting a 1.1% weekly correction, while Meta, Microsoft, and Google posted gains of 9.0%, 4.2% and 6.8% respectively. In Europe, the market rallied, with DAX and FTSE 100 gaining 3.2% and 1.9% respectively, largely buoyed by growing expectations for a rate cut in the US. Across Asia, Hang Seng and Nikkei 225 climbed 2.5% and 3.3% respectively, tracking the broader market movement.

• Fixed Income:

Bond	Current	Previous	w/w change
US 10 Yr Bond	4.02%	4.07%	▼ (5.0bps)
UK 10 Yr Gilt	4.45%	4.55%	▼ (10.0bps)
German 10 Yr Bund	2.69%	2.71%	▼ (2.0bps)
Japan 10 Year Bond	1.81%	1.79%	▲ 2.0bps

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

❖ Bond market performance trend was quite similar to the previous week's trend, for the markets that we track, all registered declines save for Japan. US 10-year bond saw yields decline 5.0 bps to 4.02%. During the week, yields dropped sub 4.0% as the market placed bets for another rate cut by the Federal Reserve. With stronger conviction, the market has priced in more than 80% chance of a rate cut, up from less than 50% by the close of the previous week. In addition, three more rate cuts are expected to be rolled out through 2026. Recent reports continue to speak to a softening labor market which raises expectations for a dovish path by the Fed.

❖ Across the Atlantic, UK 10-year Gilt saw yields ease 10.0 bps to settle at 4.45% as Racheal Reeves tabled the budget. In this budget, the government showcased focus on disciplined public finances, which cooled the market. Additionally, the market places bets for a rate cut in the next Bank of England meeting, noting easing inflation. Beyond the UK, Germany's 10-year Bund posted a 2.0 bps weekly decline in yields to 2.69%, closely tracking US yields as expectations for a rate cut continued to strengthen. Investors expect ECB to leave rates unchanged.

❖ In Japan, the 10-year bond was trending on its own horizon, bucking broader market movement. Yields rose 2.0 bps to 1.81%, one of the highest levels in recent times. This performance is linked to growing expectations for Bank of Japan to embark on rate hikes on the back of a weakening currency and rising inflationary pressures.

• Currencies:

US Dollar Index	99.479	100.196	▼ (72bps)

Source: Investing.com AIB AXYS Research

❖ The US dollar weakened against a basket of currencies, evidenced by a 72 bps decline in the US Dollar Index, which closed the week at 99.479. The dollar also lost ground against the Japanese Yen, although Japan's October jobs data limited the Yen's gains, with indicators pointing to continued softening. Additionally, the market is now warming up to potential rate hikes by the BoJ.
