Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were undersubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 67.3% from 135.7% recorded the previous week. Absolute demand remained skewed towards the 364-day paper, which received bids amounting to KES 11.85 Bn against the KES 10.00 Bn offered. Bids for the 91-day paper declined last week, with the apex bank receiving KES 3.57 Bn, lower than the KES 4.00 Bn on offer, but higher than the KES 1.39 Bn received for the 182-day paper, as investors' appetite for the mid tenor continued to remain relatively low. We partly link this to the premium difference between the 182-day paper and the other two tenors, which compelled investors to opt for the 364-day paper that offers a higher premium, or the 91-day paper, which provides more liquidity.
- The government is looking to raise KES 60.00Bn through the re-opening of the FXD1/2019/020 and FXD1/2022/025 bonds, which are earmarked for budgetary support in FY25/26. The bonds have a quoted tenor to maturity of 13.2 yrs and 21.8 yrs, while the coupon rates are set at 12.8730% and 14.1880%, respectively. Bidding is set to close on 7th January 2026. We will be issuing further bidding guidance. Additionally, the National Treasury announced a switch auction from FXD1/2016/010 (0.6 years to maturity, coupon 15.039%) to FXD1/2022/015 (11.3 years to maturity, coupon 13.942%).
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate witnessed a 0.45bps w/w downtick to 7.77%. On the other hand, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper remained unchanged at 7.80%, whilst the 364-day paper declined by 26.73 bps. Looking ahead, we expect yields to remain on a downward trajectory in the near term, albeit at a more gradual pace.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded increased 9.4% w/w to KES 69.26 Bn from KES 54.84 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed a decrease of 26.73 bps w/w to 1164.18 points, driven largely by an increase in the 5-year benchmark yields. The 5-year yield rose the most by 94.60 bps w/w while the 2-year yield eased the most by 45.31 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers decreased by an average of 18.97 bps w/w. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling appreciated against the USD, closing the week at KES 128.95 from 129.16 the previous week, posting a marginal w/w appreciation of 0.2%. The Shilling's YTD appreciation against the USD stood at 0.3%.
- Official forex reserves increased by 0.6% w/w to USD 12,133 Mn from USD 12,065 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 5.3 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

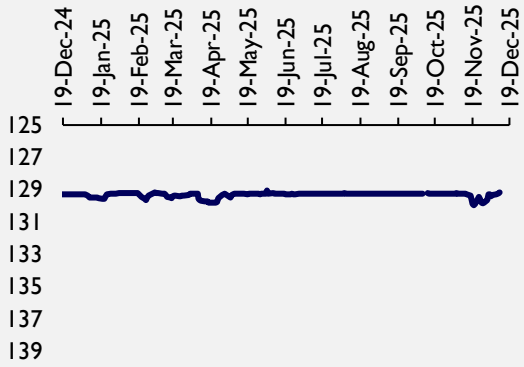

Liquidity

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week lower at 8.98%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate.

EPRA Pump Price Review- December 2025

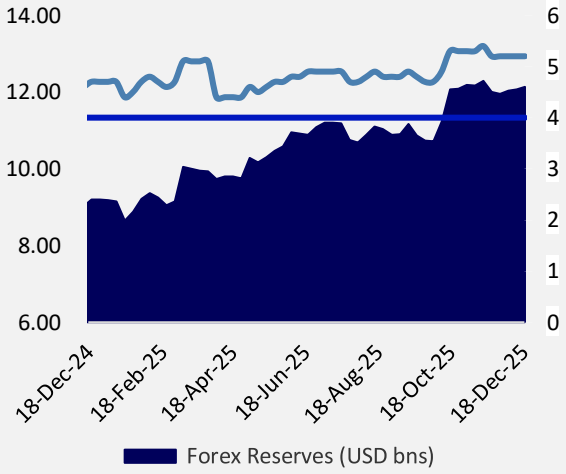

- The Energy and Petroleum Regulatory Authority (EPRA) has released the maximum retail pump prices for the December-January cycle, maintaining price stability for the fourth consecutive month. Super Petrol, Diesel, and Kerosene prices will remain unchanged, with motorists in Nairobi continuing to pay KES 184.52 per litre for Super Petrol, KES 171.47 per litre for Diesel, and KES 154.78 per litre for Kerosene.
- EPRA noted that the average landed cost of Super Petrol declined slightly by 4.3% to USD 619.14 per cubic metre in November 2025. In contrast, the landed cost of Diesel and Kerosene rose by 3.02% and 5.52% to USD 654.24 and USD 667.05 per cubic metre, respectively. Albeit the upward pressure from higher Diesel and Kerosene import costs, domestic retail prices were kept steady, supported by a relatively stable exchange rate and the prevailing tax structure.
- Going forward, in the near term, we expect fuel prices to remain stable, supported by a stable currency. The sustained stability in pump prices is likely to help contain cost-push inflation pressures and support inflation remaining within the CBK's target range. However, potential shocks from global supply disruptions and heightened geopolitical risks remain key uncertainties going forward.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

22nd December 2025

• Global Markets Commentary

- As Last week, the market closed on a mixed note. A couple of monetary policy decisions helped shape market direction, while investors also closely tracked key economic data releases. In the US, November non farm payrolls came in at 64,000, well above expectations. However, the unemployment rate edged up to 4.6% from 4.4%, one of the highest levels recorded since 2021, continuing to point to a weakening labour market despite ongoing job additions. Employment data remains closely watched in the US, as it provides guidance for the Fed's monetary policy decisions. The market is now pricing in at least two rate cuts in 2026, as policymakers seek to support economic growth. In the UK, unemployment rose to 5.1% over the August to October period, further signaling a softening labour market.
- Key central banks delivered their interest rate decisions during the week. In the UK, the Bank of England cut rates by 25 bps, lowering the base rate to 3.75% from 4.0%, in line with market expectations. The decision was reached through a narrow 5 to 4 vote split. Markets had largely priced in the cut after CPI eased to 3.2% and GDP contracted by 0.1%, both of which were viewed as sufficient catalysts for policy easing. However, the close voting margin highlights persistent concerns among policymakers over inflationary pressures, which remain above the 2.0% target.
- The ECB held rates unchanged at its final meeting of 2025, a widely anticipated outcome. In addition, the central bank revised its eurozone growth forecasts higher, to 1.4% in 2025 and 1.2% in 2026, suggesting that the path to rate cuts may be more prolonged. Meanwhile, the Bank of Japan met on Friday and implemented a 25 bps rate hike, taking the benchmark rate to 0.75% from 0.5%, fully in line with market expectations. The BoJ struck a hawkish tone, signaling the likelihood of further hikes as it seeks to rein in inflation, which remains well above its target.

- Select global equities closed on a mixed note, ending the week with a median decline of 0.3%, compared to a marginal return of 0.2% recorded the previous week. In the US, the S&P 500 edged up 0.1%, supported by a rebound in technology stocks, while a softer CPI reading also provided some lift. However, this was not sufficient to push the broader market higher, as the Dow Jones closed the week 0.7% lower despite paring losses on Friday. Across Europe, the DAX gained 0.4%, supported by the ECB's upward revision to its growth outlook for the region, even as it kept rates unchanged. In the UK, the FTSE 100 rose 2.6%, buoyed by a widely anticipated rate cut by the Bank of England. Across Asia, bearish sentiment prevailed, with the Hang Seng and Japan's Nikkei 225 posting losses of 1.1% and 2.6%, respectively, following Bank of Japan's decision to implement a rate hike and adopt a hawkish tone, signaling the possibility of further tightening should inflation and economic conditions evolve in line with its expectations.

• Fixed Income:

Bond	Current	Previous	w/w change
US 10 Yr Bond	4.14%	4.18%	▼ (4.0bps)
UK 10 Yr Gilt	4.53%	4.53%	▲ 0.5bps
German 10 Yr Bund	2.90%	2.86%	▲ 3.8bps
Japan 10 Year Bond	2.02%	1.96%	▲ 6.8bps

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

- In most markets, yields on 10-year bonds rose, save for the US, which saw a drop of 4.0 bps to close at 4.14%. This was despite a rate hike by the Bank of Japan, which generally pushed yields higher across markets. The November Consumer Price Index came in at 2.7%, lower than expected, with consensus estimates at 3.0%, which helped keep yields lower. The market is now focusing on the Fed's rate path as we head into 2026. In addition, the appointment of the next Fed chair remains on investors' radar. President Trump is seeking a dovish chair to align with his agenda.
- Across Europe, the UK 10-year Gilt rose 0.5 bps to 4.53%. A 25 bps rate cut by the Bank of England, decided by a tight 5 to 4 votes, had pushed yields lower during the week. However, Japan's rate hike reversed those gains, leaving yields higher on a weekly basis. The market is placing bets on further easing in 2026, amid moderating inflation and the need to support economic growth. Meanwhile, yields on Germany's 10-year Bund rose 3.8 bps to settle at 2.90%, in line with broader market trends. In addition, the ECB kept rates unchanged, as expected.
- Across Asia, Japan's 10-year bond yield rose 6.8 bps to 2.02% on Friday, one of the highest levels in more than 20 years, following the Bank of Japan's decision to implement a rate hike. The BoJ raised rates by 25 bps, as inflation remains sticky above the 2.0% target.

• Currencies:

Currency	Current	Previous	w/w change
AUD/USD	0.6612	0.6653	▼ (62bps)
USD/JPY	157.760	155.820	▲ 125bps

EUR/USD	1.171	1.174	▼ (26bps)
US Dollar Index	98.718	98.393	▲ 33bps

Source: Investing.com AIB AXYS Research

- Last week, the US dollar gained some ground against a basket of currencies, as evidenced by the dollar index, which closed the week 33 bps higher at 98.72. The greenback recorded its strongest appreciation against the Japanese yen, with the USD/JPY pair closing the week at 157.760. The Bank of Japan's rate hike did little to support the Yen, as investors remain concerned by the lack of a clear policy framework from the BoJ to address currency stability
