Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 128.44% from 130.28% recorded the previous week. Demand continued to skew towards the 364-day paper, which attracted KES 29.28Bn in bids against KES 10.00Bn offered, underscoring investor preference for the longer paper. The 182-day paper recorded moderate uptake, receiving KES 580.62Mn against the KES 10.00Bn on offer, while the 91-day paper registered improved demand, with KES 961.31Mn in bids versus KES 4.00Bn offered.
- In the results from the reopened FXDI/2019/020 and FXD1/2022/025, the government registered a performance rate of 119.24% with total bids received amounting to KES 71.54 Bn against a target of KES 60.00 Bn. The total amount of accepted bids was KES 60.58 Bn. The weighted average rate of accepted bids for FXDI/2019/020 and FXD1/2022/025 was 13.2623% (slightly above our competitive bidding range recommendation) and 13.7561% (well in line with our competitive bidding range recommendation), respectively, while the coupon rates for the bonds were 12.8730% and 14.1880%, respectively.
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate witnessed a 2.66 bps w/w downtick to 7.70%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper stagnated at 7.80%, whilst the 364-day paper declined by 0.12 bps. Looking ahead, we expect yields to continue trending downwards in the near term, however, now at a slower pace.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded increased 78.4% w/w to KES 75.68 Bn from KES 42.44 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed an increase of 50.27 bps w/w to 1163.47 points, driven largely by a decrease in the 25-year benchmark yields. The 4-year yield rose the most by 58.06 bps w/w while the 25-year yield eased the most by 94.96 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers decreased by an average of 20.13 bps w/w. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling depreciated against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.03 from KES 129.01 the previous week, reflecting a marginal w/w depreciation of 0.02%. The Shilling's YTD appreciation against the USD stood at 0.2%.
- Official forex reserves increased by 0.8% w/w to USD 12,477 Mn from USD 12,384 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 5.4 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

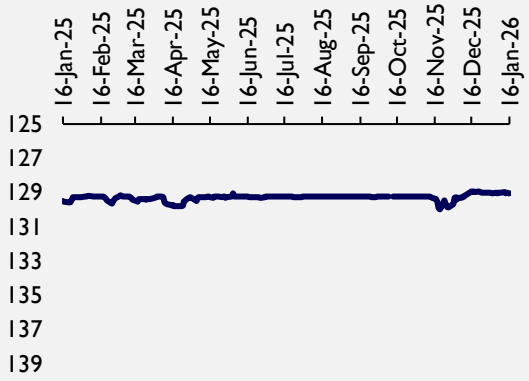

EPRA Pump Price Review- January 2026

- The Energy and Petroleum Regulatory Authority (EPRA) has released the maximum retail pump prices for the January–February 2026 pricing cycle, with prices declining across all fuel categories. Super Petrol, Diesel, and Kerosene prices have decreased by KES 2.00, KES 1.00, and KES 1.00 per litre, respectively. As a result, Super Petrol will now retail at KES 182.52 per litre, Diesel at KES 170.47 per litre, and Kerosene at KES 153.78 per litre in Nairobi.
- The downward adjustment points to a broad-based decline in international petroleum import costs. EPRA noted that the average landed cost of Super Petrol edged down by 0.10% to USD 592.24 per cubic metre in December 2025. Meanwhile, Diesel and Kerosene recorded sharper declines of 4.20% and 8.92%, with landed costs falling to USD 626.75 and USD 607.55 per cubic metre, respectively. The decline in import costs eased pricing pressures, allowing for lower domestic pump prices despite the prevailing tax structure.
- Looking ahead, we expect fuel prices to remain relatively stable in the near term, supported by easing global oil prices and a stable exchange rate environment. The reduction in pump prices is likely to further ease cost-push inflationary pressures and support inflation remaining within the CBK's target range. However, risks remain, particularly from potential global supply disruptions and heightened geopolitical tensions that could reverse recent gains.

Liquidity

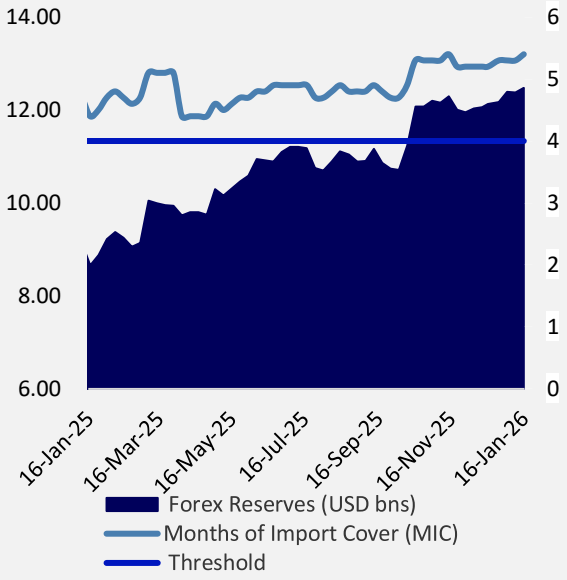

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week at 9.00%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

19th January 2026

• Global Markets Commentary

- Last week's developments in Iran suggest that 2026 is shaping up to be a year defined by geopolitical flux, particularly when viewed alongside the US capture of Venezuela's President Nicolás Maduro on serious drug trafficking charges. Protests in Iran escalated to a new phase as worsening economic conditions fueled public unrest, with demonstrators increasingly directing their anger at the clerical establishment. US President Trump signaled that the US would provide support should the situation escalate further.
- On another front, concerns are mounting over the independence of the Federal Reserve following the Department of Justice's launch of criminal investigations into Fed Chair Jerome Powell, linked to his testimony before a Senate committee regarding multi dollar renovations to two Federal Reserve buildings, where costs exceeded the initially estimated budget. Powell has pushed back against the investigations, arguing that they represent an attempt to exert pressure on the Fed to accelerate rate cuts. The Fed continues to face sustained pressure, particularly from President Trump, to lower rates at a faster pace.
- Meanwhile, the US earnings season has begun on a mixed note, with results from banks and technology firms diverging. Morgan Stanley stood out after posting earnings that beat consensus estimates, with earnings per share at USD 2.68, supported by strong investment banking revenues. Assets under management rose to USD 9.3 Tn, lifting the share price. Management guidance points to a healthy pipeline for IPOs and M&A activity in the near term, particularly within the healthcare and industrial sectors.

- Equities closed broadly on a mixed note, as evidenced by gains across major global indices. S&P 500 and the Dow ended the week lower. Notably, small caps outperformed on a weekly basis, with the Russell 2000 beating the S&P 500 and extending its longest winning streak since 2008 to 11 consecutive trading sessions. This performance was buoyed by strong corporate earnings and a rebound in economic growth. In addition, investors continued rotating into small caps from mega caps, which are already well priced for growth.
- Across the Atlantic, the DAX was largely unchanged, edging up 0.1%, while the FTSE 100 gained 1.1%, lifted by strong earnings from financial counters. In Asia, markets closed on a very strong note, with the Hang Seng and Nikkei 225 climbing 2.3% and 3.8% w/w, respectively. The Nikkei 225 would have closed higher were it not for profit-taking that intensified on Friday, following reports that Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi could dissolve the House of Representatives.

• Fixed Income:

Bond	Current	Previous	w/w change
US 10 Yr Bond	4.23%	4.18%	▲ 5.2bps
UK 10 Yr Gilt	4.40%	4.38%	▲ 1.9bps

Japan 10 Year Bond	2.18%	2.10%	▲ 8.7bps

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

- In the US, the 10 year Treasury yield closed 5.2 bps higher at 4.23%, as investors continued to assess the Federal Reserve's independence following reports of criminal investigations involving Fed Chair Jerome Powell. This backdrop is likely to prompt investors to demand higher yields on longer-duration assets. Attention is also shifting to the appointment of the next Fed Chair, with Powell's term set to end in May. In addition, PCE inflation data due this week remains firmly on investors' radar, as it is expected to guide the Fed's policy direction.
- In Europe, the UK 10 year gilt yield rose 1.9 bps on a weekly basis to 4.40%, supported by encouraging GDP data, with the UK economy expanding by 0.3% in November after a 0.1% contraction in October and beating market expectations of 0.1% growth. Markets are now pricing in at least two rate cuts by the Bank of England by the end of the year. In contrast, Germany's 10-year Bund yield eased by 2.8 bps to 2.84%. While the ECB has held rates steady in recent meetings, markets continue to digest comments from an ECB member suggesting that rate hikes could still materialize later in the year.
- Lastly, Japan's 10 year government bond yield climbed 8.7 bps to 2.18% as investors continued to price in further rate hikes by the Bank of Japan at upcoming meetings. The BoJ Governor reiterated that the central bank would maintain a hawkish stance provided economic growth and CPI remain within projected ranges.
