AIB-AXYS Weekly Fixed Income Note

9th February 2026

Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 267.9% from 196.7% recorded the previous week. Demand was overwhelmingly concentrated in the 364-day paper, which attracted KES 50.83Bn in bids against KES 10.00Bn offered, underscoring sustained investor appetite for longer-tenor instruments amid attractive yields. The 91-day paper also recorded solid uptake, receiving KES 12.96Bn in bids versus KES 4.00Bn offered, reflecting continued preference for short-term liquidity positioning. In contrast, the 182-day paper underperformed, attracting only KES 4.97Bn against KES 10.00Bn offered, signaling persistent investor hesitance towards the mid-tenor segment as participants favored either near-term liquidity offered by the shorter paper or relatively higher yield offered by the 364-day tenor.
- The government is looking to raise KES 50.00Bn through the re-opening of the FXD3/2019/015 and FXD1/2018/025 bonds, which are earmarked for budgetary support in FY25/26. The bonds have quoted tenors to maturity of 8.4 yrs and 17.3 yrs, while the coupon rates are set at 12.3400% and 13.4000% respectively. Bidding is set to close on 11th February 2026. We will be issuing further bidding guidance.
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate witnessed a 0.28 bps w/w downtick to 7.63%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper declined by 1.19%, whilst the 364-day paper declined by 0.67 bps. Looking ahead, we expect yields to continue trending downwards in the near term; however, now at a slower pace.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded decreased 19.1% w/w to KES 57.51 Bn from KES 71.09 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed a decrease of 55.10 bps w/w to 1167.67 points, driven largely by an increase in the 8-year benchmark yields. The 8-year yield rose the most by 19.91 bps w/w while the 4-year yield eased the most by 15.76 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers decreased by an average of 3.65 bps w/w. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling appreciated against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.02 from KES 129.03 the previous week, a marginal w/w appreciation of 0.01%. The Shilling's YTD appreciation against the USD stood at 0.2%.
- Official forex reserves increased by 0.4% w/w to USD 12,387 Mn from USD 12,334 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 5.3 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

MPC Meeting Projections

- The Monetary Policy Committee is set to meet on 10th February 2026. We expect the Committee to cut the policy rate by 25 bps, bringing the CBR to 8.75%, supported by: i) stable inflation, ii) the need to enhance economic growth, and iii) the need to expand lending to the private sector.

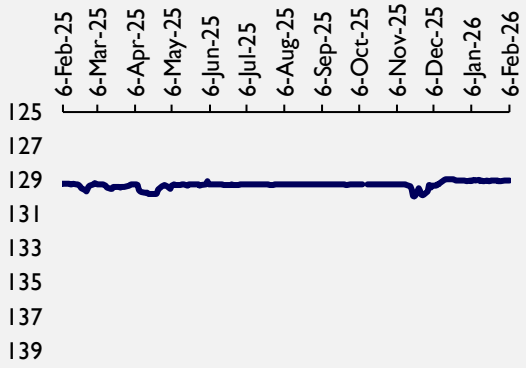

Stanbic Bank Kenya Purchasing Managers Index– January 2026

- According to Stanbic Bank Kenya's Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI), business conditions in Kenya remained in expansion territory for the fifth consecutive month in January, although the pace of growth moderated. The headline PMI eased to 51.9 in January from 53.7 in December, indicating continued improvement in private sector activity, albeit at a four-month low.
- Business activity and new orders continued to expand, supported by demand-side factors such as increased customer referrals, improved order books, and new contracts driven by competitive pricing and marketing efforts. However, the rate of growth slowed, with sales expansion softening to its weakest level in four months, reflecting uneven demand conditions across sectors.
- Employment and purchasing activity grew at a slower pace, in line with easing output growth. Firms reported a notable reduction in backlogs of work, the fastest decline since April 2021 pointing to improved operational efficiency and reduced pressure on capacity. Inventory accumulation remained marginal, as companies sought to limit excess inputs amid softer demand momentum.
- Supply chain conditions continued to improve, with supplier delivery times shortening for the twelfth consecutive month, largely reflecting competitive pressures among vendors and improved logistics performance. Input costs rose solidly, driven by higher raw material prices, increased taxes, import charges, and technology-related expenses. Nonetheless, firms exercised pricing restraint, with output price inflation remaining modest as businesses scaled back mark-ups due to market saturation and concerns about slowing growth.
- Looking ahead, business confidence improved to a five-month high, supported by expansion plans, increased marketing, diversification strategies, and expectations of stronger order flows. However, firms remain cautious amid moderating growth dynamics and cost pressures.

Liquidity

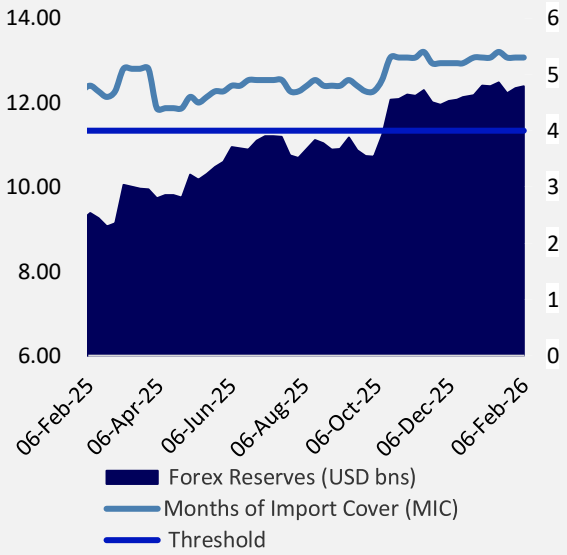

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week at 8.99%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

9th February 2026

• Global Markets Commentary

- Spending concerns by big tech names erased valuations on Wall Street earlier in the week, before gains on Friday pared some of the losses. On Thursday, big technology names recorded sharp declines as investor concerns remained elevated over heavy capital expenditure plans on artificial intelligence. The Nasdaq 100 Index, which is tech-heavy, fell by 1.4%, while the S&P 500 eased by 1.2%. Additionally, private sector jobs data added to the pressure, as it continued to point to a weakening economy. The data showed that companies announced the largest job cuts in January since 2009.
- The US and India reached a trade deal last week, under which India plans to buy USD 500.0 Bn of US energy goods and aircraft over the next five years. Additionally, President Trump signed executive orders removing the punitive 25.0% duty on all imported Indian goods. India also committed to halting direct or indirect imports of Russian Federation oil. (Earlier US had imposed an additional 25.0% duty aimed at pressuring the country to cease such imports.) This deal is expected to act as a catalyst for Indian equities as well as the Indian Rupee.
- On Sunday, Japan entered a snap election pushed by Prime Minister Takaichi Sane, with polls indicating she is likely to secure victory. A parliamentary majority would give her greater leeway to implement her agenda, which entails sustained fiscal spending. This may push Japanese bond yields higher.

- The market closed on a mixed note. In the US, the S&P 500 closed down 0.1% for the week, while the Dow Jones Industrial Average added 2.5%. The S&P 500 was dragged lower by heavy tech sell offs earlier in the week, as investors grew wary of rising artificial intelligence spending among big technology names. On Friday, the S&P 500 rebounded, gaining 2.0% and paring earlier losses, though this was not sufficient to secure a weekly gain. Small caps recorded stronger performance, with the Russell 2000 Index adding 3.6% in that trading session. Notably, the Dow closed above 5,000 as rotation away from technology stocks persisted. Amazon closed Friday's session 5.6% lower following the announcement of a planned 50.0% increase in AI capital expenditure as competition in the AI space intensifies.
- Across the Atlantic, the DAX and FTSE 100 rose 0.7% and 1.4% week on week, respectively. The DAX recovered on Friday after a three day losing streak, amid easing concerns over elevated artificial intelligence spending. Meanwhile, the FTSE 100 added 0.6% on Friday to secure another weekly gain, buoyed by strength in banking stocks.
- In Asia, the Hang Seng Index fell 3.0% week on week, weighed down by technology sector sell offs. In contrast, the Nikkei 225 rose 1.7% w/w despite losses earlier in the week, with Friday's 0.8% jump lifting the index, supported by gains in banking and real estate stocks.

- The yield on the US 10-year bond eased 2.1 bps to settle at 4.22% on Friday. Investors will be keeping a close eye on the upcoming US jobs report as well as CPI data this week. Private sector jobs data points to a slowing economy, reigniting investor concerns. The market has already priced in at least two rate cuts during the year. In addition, the incoming Fed Chair, Warsh, although widely viewed as a hawk, has trimmed expectations of aggressive rate cuts.
- The UK 10-year bond yield rose 1.7 bps to end the week at 4.51%, as the Bank of England left rates unchanged at 3.75%, a widely expected outcome, while signaling a more dovish stance. Inflation has continued to ease, although signs of a weakening labour market remain evident. Meanwhile, the German 10-year Bund ended the week at 2.85%, 0.3 bps lower, after the European Central Bank left interest rates unchanged, as expected. The ECB expects inflation to fall within desired levels, below 2.0%.
- Lastly, Japan's 10-year government bond yield eased 1.6 bps to 2.23%. Investors remain on tenterhooks as they assess the country's fiscal position amid planned fiscal spending and potential tax cuts that could shrink revenues. Prime Minister Takaichi has called for snap elections to consolidate the ruling party's support to advance her policy agenda
