Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were strongly oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 308.8% from 267.9% recorded the previous week. Absolute demand was overwhelmingly skewed towards the 364-day paper, which attracted KES 60.05Bn in bids against KES 10.00Bn offered, underscoring sustained preference for longer-tenor instruments amid attractive yields. The 91-day paper also recorded solid uptake, receiving KES 7.18Bn against the KES 4.00Bn on offer, pointing to continued short-term liquidity positioning. In contrast, the 182-day paper underperformed, attracting KES 6.88Bn against KES 10.00Bn offered, signaling relatively subdued appetite for the mid-tenor segment as investors favored either liquidity at the short end or yield enhancement at the long end.
- In the results from the reopened FXD3/2019/015 and FXD1/2018/025, the government registered a performance rate of 427.47% with total bids received amounting to KES 213.74 Bn against a target of KES 50.00 Bn. The total amount of accepted bids was KES 100.54 Bn. The weighted average rate of accepted bids for FXD3/2019/015 and FXD1/2018/025 was 12.1835% (slightly below our competitive bidding range recommendation) and 13.3621% (well in line with our competitive bidding range recommendation), respectively, while the coupon rates for the bonds were 12.3400% and 13.4000%, respectively.
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate witnessed a 2.04 bps w/w downtick to 7.61%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper declined by 1.80 bps, whilst the 364-day paper stagnated at 9.20%. Looking ahead, we expect yields continue to moderate downwards.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded increased 29.7% w/w to KES 74.63 Bn from KES 57.51 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed an increase of 51.98 bps w/w to 1173.74 points, driven largely by a decrease in the 11-year benchmark yields. The 16-year yield rose the most by 43.32 bps w/w while the 11-year yield eased the most by 46.15 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers increased by an average of 2.63 bps w/w. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling remained largely unchanged against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.02, similar to the previous week's level of KES 129.02, pointing to a stable exchange rate environment. The Shilling's YTD appreciation against the USD stood at 0.2%.
- Official forex reserves increased by 0.7% w/w to USD 12,485 Mn from USD 12,387 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 5.4 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) policy decision

- The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) lowered the Central Bank Rate (CBR) by 25bps to 8.75% from 9.00% during its February 2026 meeting, in line with our projections. The committee noted easing inflationary pressures. Further, inflation is expected to remain below the midpoint of the target range in the near term, supported by stable prices of processed food items and energy, and stability in the exchange rate. The committee saw further scope to ease in a bid to support economic activity and stimulate lending to the private sector while keeping inflation under control. Other key takeaways from last week's meeting.

i. Gross NPLs to loans stood at 15.5% in January 2026, an improvement from 16.7% in October.
ii. Growth in private sector lending improved to 6.4% in January from 5.9% in December.
iii. The interest rate corridor was narrowed further to 50 bps from 75 bps.
iv. The applicable interest rate on the Discount Window was adjusted to 50 bps from 75 bps.

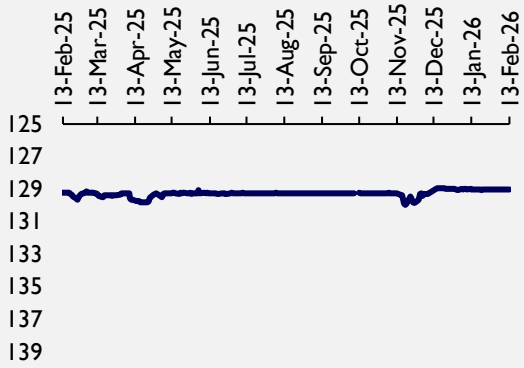

EPRA Pump Price Review– January 2026

- The Energy and Petroleum Regulatory Authority (EPRA) has released the maximum retail pump prices for the period 15th February 2026 to 14th March 2026, with prices declining across all products. In Nairobi, Super Petrol, Diesel and Kerosene prices decreased by KES 4.24, KES 3.93 and KES 1.00 per litre respectively to KES 178.28, KES 166.54 and KES 152.78 per litre.
- The downward adjustment was driven by lower average landed costs in January 2026, with: Super Petrol declining by 2.69% to USD 576.34 per cubic metre, diesel decreasing by 6.37% to USD 586.80 per cubic metre and Kerosene easing by 1.44% to USD 598.82 per cubic metre. The relatively stable USD/KES exchange rate over the review period further supported the reduction in pump prices.
- In the near term, we expect fuel prices to remain broadly stable, supported by subdued international crude oil prices and currency stability.
- However, risks remain tilted to the upside, particularly from potential global supply disruptions and heightened geopolitical tensions that could exert pressure on international oil prices.

Liquidity

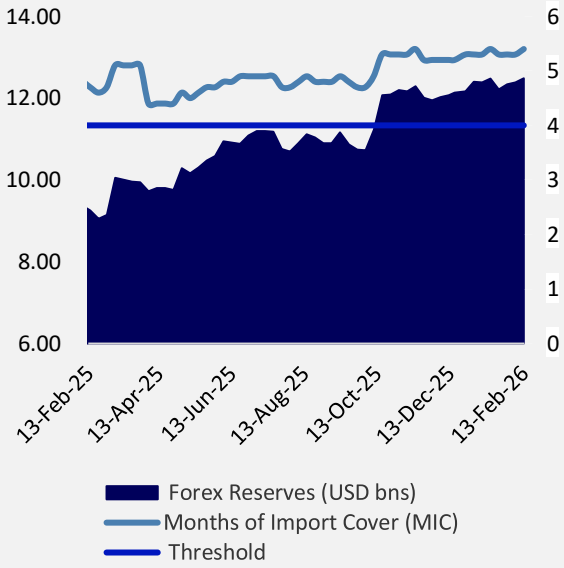

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week at 8.78%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

16th February 2026

• Global Markets Commentary

- The equities market closed broadly in the green, except for the US, which was weighed down by sell-offs in AI-related sectors. Japan stood in a league of its own, with the Nikkei closing 5.0% higher, buoyed by improved investor sentiment after Prime Minister Takaichi won by a landslide in the snap elections. Investors appear to be warming up to Prime Minister Takaichi's vision, which saw the Nikkei breach 57,000 for the first time. With a majority in the lower house, Takaichi will have the backing to drive an economic stimulus agenda.
- Sell-offs in tech-related names did not cool off last week, which saw US equities trail the rest of global markets. The sell-offs were concentrated on Thursday, with the tech-heavy Nasdaq dropping 2.0% and the S&P 500 easing 1.6%. Investors rotated out of tech stocks ahead of Friday's CPI data release. Investors have been paying closer attention to tech names and scrutinizing sectors that could face downside risks linked to the AI industry, which explains the recent sell-offs in software stocks. Despite these concerns, major AI-related companies have continued to post solid earnings during the AI boom.
- Still in the US, January data showed that inflation eased more than expected, coming in at 2.4% versus expectations of 2.5%, although it remains above the 2.0% target. This marked the lowest level since May 2025. In addition, the US economy added 130,000 jobs in January, surpassing consensus estimates. The Department of Labor noted that job gains were recorded in healthcare, social assistance, and construction, while the federal government and financial activities lost jobs. The unemployment rate stood at 4.3%, a slight improvement from 4.4%.

- Four out of the six global indices we track closed in the green. Major US indices posted weekly losses as sell-offs in the tech sector intensified last Thursday, despite encouraging CPI and job data released on Friday. The tech-heavy Nasdaq lost 2.1% for the week, while the S&P 500 and Dow shed 1.4% and 1.2%, respectively. The sell-off was led by big tech names, including Apple, Meta, and Amazon, which declined by 5.0%, 2.8%, and 2.3%, respectively. Notably, Cisco tumbled 12.3% on Thursday, reigniting investor worries about the tech sector after missing profitability estimates.
- Across Europe, the FTSE 100's winning streak extended to a third consecutive week, adding 0.7%, buoyed by increasing prospects of monetary easing, which helped cushion investor concerns over the AI theme and related industries. Expectations of easing by the Bank of England in March have climbed to 63.4%. Germany's DAX rose 0.8%, despite elevated investor concerns that trimmed some gains for the week.
- Across Asia, Hong Kong's Hang Seng remained relatively flat, while the Nikkei stole the show for the week, chiefly buoyed by improved sentiment after PM Takaichi won the snap election by a landslide.

• Fixed Income:

Bond	Current	Previous	w/w change
US 10 Yr Bond	4.05%	4.22%	▼ (16.5bps)
UK 10 Yr Gilt	4.42%	4.51%	▼ (9.3bps)
Germany 10 Yr Bund	2.76%	2.84%	▼ (8.5bps)
Japan 10 Year Bond	2.21%	2.23%	▼ (2.1bps)

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

- As volatility in the tech sector heightened, alongside increased investor scrutiny over potential disruptions in financial markets, demand for safe-haven assets rose, supporting bond prices. Bond yields softened across major markets. In the US, easing was notable across the yield curve, with yields on the 2-year bond falling to their lowest levels since September 2022. The 10-year yield eased by 16.5 bps to 4.05%, following cooler-than-expected inflation data, as well as stronger-than-expected NFP data, which came in at 130,000, beating estimates of 70,000. CPI data remains above the Fed's target, which means it may not be sufficient to compel the Fed into imminent rate cuts.
- Across Europe, the UK 10-year bond yield dropped by 9.3 bps to 4.42% after the BoE signaled a dovish stance at its latest meeting as inflation continues to ease. On the other hand, Germany's 10-year Bund eased by 8.5 bps to settle at 2.76% on Friday, as markets raised bets for easing, noting the recent appreciation of the euro.
- In Asia, Japan's 10-year bond yield eased slightly by 2.1 bps to 2.21% following PM Sanae Takaichi's recent snap election win. Her planned fiscal spending agenda is expected to propel economic growth. However, some investors are taking a wait-and-see approach on whether this will materialize.

• Currencies:

- The US dollar was under pressure, losing against a basket of currencies, evidenced by the US dollar index, which lost 71 bps to close the week at 96.82, from 97.51. Japanese Yen staged one of the strongest weekly gains, appreciating by 287 bps, which saw the USD/JPY pair close at 152.7000 from 157.210.
