AIB-AXYS Weekly Fixed Income Note

2nd March 2026

Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 243.87% from 295.60% recorded the previous week. Absolute demand remained skewed towards the 364-day paper, which received bids worth KES 45.39 Bn, while subscription for the 91-day paper remained robust. The 182-day paper underperformed, recording a 7.91% performance rate, a trend we have taken note of, suggesting that investors are leaning towards the 91-day paper for near-term liquidity and the 364-day paper for higher yields.
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate registered a 0.99 bps w/w downtick to 7.58%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper rose by 5.00 bps, whilst the 364-day paper eased to 8.90%.
- The government is looking to raise KES 60.00Bn through the re-opening of the FXD1/2019/020 and FXD1/2021/025 bonds, which are earmarked for budgetary support in FY25/26. The bonds have a quoted tenor to maturity of 13.1 yrs and 20.1 yrs while the coupon rates are set at 12.8730% and 13.9240%, respectively. Bidding is set to close on 11th March 2026. We will be issuing further bidding guidance.
- The government announced a bond switch. The source bond is FXD1/2021/005, with a coupon rate of 11.2770%, maturing on 9th November and an outstanding amount of KES 66.08 Bn. Authorities are seeking to switch KES 15.00 Bn. The destination bond is FXD3/2019/015, which has a tenor to maturity of 8.3 years and a coupon rate of 12.3400%. This market operation falls within the government's plan to reduce near-term fiscal pressure.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded increased 20.1% w/w to KES 136.23 Bn from KES 113.44 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed an increase of 60.73 bps w/w to 1,202.75points, driven largely by a decrease in the 7-year benchmark yields. The 3-year yield rose the most by 22.46 bps w/w, while the 7-year yield eased the most by 72.15 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers increased by an average of 1.68 bps w/w. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling remained relatively unchanged against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.02, similar to the previous week's level of KES 129.02, pointing to a stable exchange rate environment. The Shilling's YTD appreciation against the USD stood at 0.2%.
- Official forex reserves decreased by 1.0% w/w to USD 12,535 Mn from USD 12,659 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 5.4 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

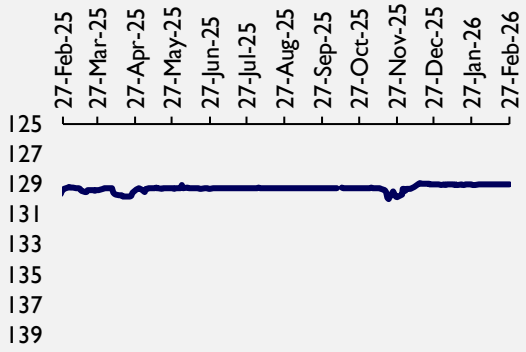

Liquidity

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week at 8.77%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate, following further narrowing of the interest corridor to 50 bps from 75 bps.

Kenya Consumer Price Index – February 2026

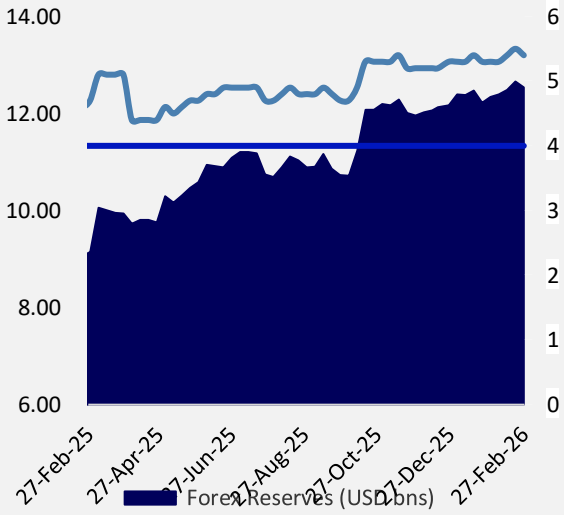

- February inflation eased 4.3%, quite in line with our in-house estimates of 4.3%-4.5%; and was slightly lower than January's 4.4%. This implies that consumer prices were 4.3% higher in February 2026 compared to February 2025.
- Food inflation rate stood at 7.3% same level recorded in January. Fuel inflation eased by 80bps to 4.0% while Core inflation (Non-food Non-fuel) decreased by 10bps to 2.1% from 2.2% recorded in the previous month.
- We anticipate a slowdown in inflation in the near term, driven by improved weather conditions during the March long rains season, especially in the food-producing regions, which is expected to boost crop yields, strengthen food reserves, and contribute to a decline in food inflation. However, if the situation in the Middle East escalates, this could trigger volatility in the global oil market and have a ripple effect on oil prices. Higher oil prices may trickle down in the country, leading to an increase in fuel prices, which would impact other areas of the economy and push inflation higher. So far, a stable exchange rate against the dollar and stable fuel prices have helped contain inflation.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

2nd March 2026

• Global Markets Commentary

- The oil market is likely to face some shocks following the US attack on Iran over the weekend. The joint US and Israel attack on Iran killed Iran's Supreme Leader, Khamenei. Additionally, there have been reports of attacks in Dubai, UAE, Qatar, and Kuwait, as Iran launches retaliatory attacks on Arab states that host US assets. An attack on Iran poses a challenge to the transport of oil if Iran decides to block the Strait of Hormuz (approximately 20.0% of global oil passes through the Strait of Hormuz); this would compel OPEC+ members to pump more oil. Still, a challenge would remain since some of these members would still need to transit their vessels through the Strait of Hormuz. The question of whether geopolitical tensions will broaden to other Middle East countries lingers; this would place pressure on oil supply.
- On data releases, wholesale inflation came in hotter than expected, driving Wall Street stocks down. Data from the Labor Department released on Friday showed that the Producer Price Index rose by 0.5% from December and by 2.9% on a yearly basis, surpassing consensus estimates of 0.3% month on month and 1.6% year on year. The increase suggests businesses are passing on higher costs from President Trump's tariffs to consumers. Key to note, consumer prices remain above the Fed target of 2.0%, coming in at 2.4% in January. This week, investors will be paying closer attention to developments in the Middle East, worrying about possible escalation, which would have a ripple effect to global economy.

- Save for US stocks, most global equities closed in the green. Discouraging PPI data, fears of possible escalation of conflict in the Middle East, and increased investor scrutiny in the AI sector and related industries were key drags. The US S&P 500 and Nasdaq (which is tech-heavy) closed in the red on a monthly basis, shedding 0.9% and 2.3% respectively to post their worst performance since March 2025. The losses are linked to declines in AI-related large caps, as investors continue to assess heavy spending on AI and elevated valuations. During the week, AI industry leader Nvidia released its quarterly results. Despite beating estimates, investors did not warm to the stock, as the outlook questions for some investors were not fully addressed. Additionally, Paramount Skydance climbed by 20.8% on Friday following news that it had inked a deal to acquire Warner Bros. Discovery for USD 110.00 Bn. In the deal, Paramount offered to acquire Warner Bros. at USD 31.00 per share, which is attractive compared to rival Netflix, which offered USD 27.75 per share.
- In Europe, the FTSE 100 registered bullish sentiment, adding 2.1% for the week. The index was buoyed by gains from large caps that reported encouraging results, such as HSBC Holdings. Germany's DAX was largely flat, closing the week at 25,284. Across Asia, the Nikkei 225 and Hang Seng rebounded from the previous week's pullback, with Nikkei hitting new all-time highs as investors continued to rotate into sectors poised to benefit from the broader AI ecosystem.

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

- US 10-year bond yields fell by 13.9 bps to close at 3.95% on Friday, dropping below 4.0% as demand for safe-haven assets persisted, driven by growing tensions in the Middle East as well as uncertainty around trade policy from President Trump's administration. PPI data was not encouraging, coming in higher than expected; however, investors continue to place bets on the first Fed rate cut coming in June or July. Investors will also continue to assess the US economy. Key to note, US Q4 GDP slowed more than expected, printing at 1.4%.
- Across Europe, the UK's 10-year bond yield fell by 12.2 bps to close the week at 4.23%. The market continues to assess the outcome of recent political developments and the possible implications for Prime Minister Keir Starmer after the UK Labour Party lost in a key district. In Germany, the 10-year bond yield eased by 8.4 bps to 2.66%.
- In Asia, Japan's 10-year bond yield rose slightly by 0.3 bps to 2.11%, amid growing uncertainty over the Bank of Japan's monetary path. On data releases, Japan's inflation came in lower, implying that the BoJ may slow the pace of rate hikes.
