AIB-AXYS Weekly Fixed Income Note

9th March 2026

Key Highlights

- Spot market treasury bills were strongly oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 418.43% from 243.87% recorded the previous week. Absolute demand was heavily skewed towards the 364-day paper, which received bids worth KES 83.32Bn against KES 10.00Bn offered, underscoring sustained investor preference for longer-tenor instruments amid attractive yields. The 182-day paper also recorded healthy uptake, attracting KES 15.16Bn in bids against the KES 10.00Bn on offer. In contrast, the 91-day paper underperformed, receiving only KES 1.95Bn against KES 4.00Bn offered, suggesting investors favored higher-yielding longer-tenor instruments over short-term liquidity positioning.
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate registered a 0.05 bps w/w downtick to 7.58%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper rose by 2.16 bps, whilst the 364-day paper eased to 8.64%.
- The government is looking to raise KES 60.00Bn through the re-opening of the FXD1/2019/020 and FXD1/2021/025 bonds, which are earmarked for budgetary support in FY25/26. The bonds have a quoted tenor to maturity of 13.1 yrs and 20.1 yrs while the coupon rates are set at 12.8730% and 13.9240%, respectively. Bidding is set to close on 11th March 2026. We will be issuing further bidding guidance.
- The government announced a bond switch. The source bond is FXD1/2021/005, with a coupon rate of 11.2770%, maturing on 9th November and an outstanding amount of KES 66.08 Bn. Authorities are seeking to switch KES 15.00 Bn. The destination bond is FXD3/2019/015, which has a tenor to maturity of 8.3 years and a coupon rate of 12.3400%. This market operation falls within the government's plan to reduce near-term fiscal pressure.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded decreased 47.5% w/w to KES 71.49 Bn from KES 136.23 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed an increase of 40.32 bps w/w to 1,207.60 points, driven largely by a decrease in the 20-year benchmark yields. The 7-year yield rose the most by 41.70 bps w/w, while the 20-year yield eased the most by 37.07 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers increased by an average of 51.41 bps w/w. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling depreciated against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.20 from KES 129.02 the previous week, a marginal w/w depreciation of 0.1%. The Shilling's YTD appreciation against the USD stood at 0.1%.
- Official forex reserves increased by 16.4% w/w to USD 14,597 Mn from USD 12,535 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 6.2 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

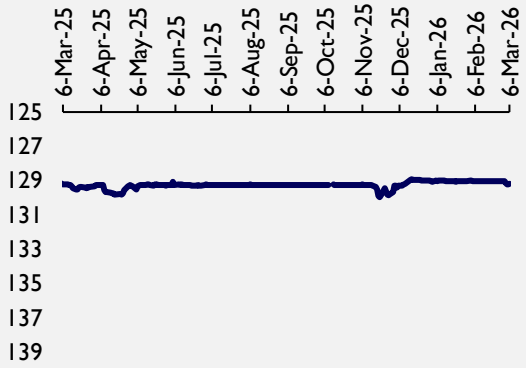

Liquidity

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week at 8.72%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate, following further narrowing of the interest corridor to 50 bps from 75 bps.

Stanbic Bank Kenya Purchasing Managers Index – February 2026

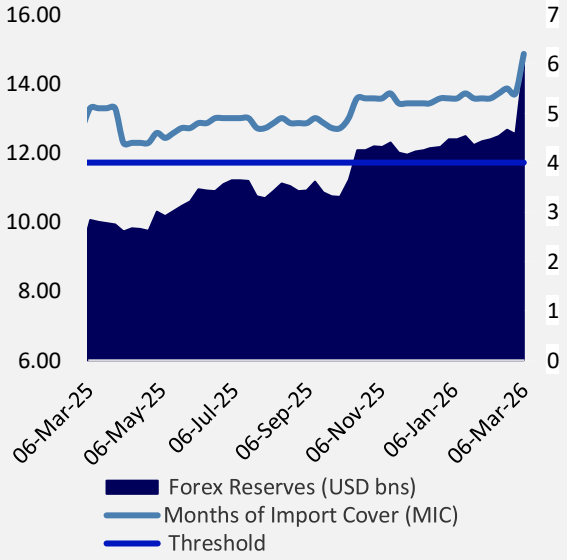

- According to Stanbic Bank Kenya's Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI), private sector activity remained marginally in expansion territory in February, though growth slowed significantly. The headline PMI eased to 50.4 from 51.9 in January, marking the third consecutive monthly decline and signaling that business conditions were close to stagnation.
- Business activity and new orders expanded only marginally, with growth easing to the softest pace in the current six-month expansion sequence. Firms attributed the modest improvement to product launches, marketing initiatives and promotional pricing, although weak consumer purchasing power and heightened competition continued to weigh on demand.
- Sectoral performance was mixed, with construction, wholesale & retail and services registering sales growth, while agriculture and manufacturing recorded contractions during the month.
- Purchasing activity and inventory accumulation slowed as firms responded to softer demand conditions, though companies continued to hire staff to manage workloads and ease pressure on existing employees.
- Cost pressures moderated, with input price inflation easing to a three-month low as increases in purchase prices and wages slowed. Consequently, firms raised their selling prices at the slowest pace since November, reflecting competitive pressures and subdued demand.
- Business sentiment remained positive, with just over 20% of firms expecting higher output over the next twelve months. Optimism was underpinned by expectations of stronger demand, improved economic conditions, product innovation, and expanded marketing efforts. Nonetheless, the subdued pace of current activity suggests that while macroeconomic conditions are improving, segments of the private sector continue to face demand-side constraints.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

9th March 2026

• Global Markets Commentary

- We had flagged in our last weekly edition; oil prices were likely to remain volatile due to the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. During the week, oil prices bore the brunt of the war in the region. The Strait of Hormuz, a critical passage point for global oil, remains unsafe for oil shipments, which implies disruption to the oil market. Oil prices posted their largest weekly gains, with the US benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude (WTI) climbing approximately 38.0% for the week.
- High oil prices could impact the global economy, given the ripple effects on production costs in other sectors that depend on oil. However, the disruption so far has not been significant enough to cause lasting shocks, although the impact on social life is already critical. Uncertainty remains over how long the conflict will last in the region, highlighting the importance of countries maintaining strategic reserves in readiness for possible disruptions. Exporters through the Strait of Hormuz are now seeking alternative routes. Given that the US is keen on containing inflation, it may not want escalation in order to avoid inflation flaring up, suggesting that the war may last a few weeks but not months, though there is still no guarantee.
- On the data front, US nonfarm payrolls registered 92,000 job losses against the consensus estimate of 58,000 job additions. At the same time, January's job additions were revised down to 126,000 from 130,000. Additionally, the unemployment rate came in at 4.4%, higher than the 4.3% registered in January

- Global equities closed at a median loss of 4.4%, with all the indices that we track ending the week in the red. In the US, the S&P 500 and the Dow lost 2.0% and 3.0% w/w, weighed down by uncertainty stemming from the ongoing conflict in the Middle East as investors continued to assess risk. Job data released on Friday did not help matters, as the figures came in far below expectations. The Labour Department reported 92,000 job losses in February, compared to a consensus estimate of 58,000 job additions, which continues to point to a weakening labour market, while unemployment also came in higher than expected at 4.4%. This latest set of data complicates the outlook and the policy direction for the Fed. The market had priced in two rate cuts in 2026, expected to come in the second half of the year.
- In Europe, Germany's DAX tumbled 6.7%, bringing an end to its back-to-back winning streak and posting its worst weekly performance since April 2025. The conflict in the Middle East, further compounded by disappointing job data in the US, weighed down investor sentiment. Additionally, the UK's FTSE 100 dropped by 5.7% w/w to close at 10,285, marking its worst weekly losses since President Trump's "Liberation Day" tariffs as the sell off intensified.
- Across Asia, markets were reading from the same script, with sell offs leaving the Nikkei and Hang Seng at losses of 5.5% and 3.3% respectively. The Nikkei rebounded in the last two trading sessions, but the severe losses booked earlier in the week left the index nursing weekly losses.

• Fixed Income:

UK 10 Yr Gilt	4.57%	4.23%	▲ 33.9bps

Japan 10 Year Bond	2.17%	2.11%	▲ 5.4bps

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

- Yields rose across the board amid the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. In the US, yields climbed by 18.1 bps to 4.13% from 3.95%, as concerns about inflation remain due to high oil prices. Additionally, investors were left to digest the latest job data, which points to a weakening economy after the Labor Department reported 92,000 job losses in February, alongside a higher than expected unemployment rate of 4.4%. Market focus will now shift to the upcoming Fed meeting, where a "hold" is expected. Inflation data due this week will help guide the Fed.
- The yield on the UK's 10-year bond rose by 33.9 bps to 4.57% amid heightened tension in the Middle East, which is poised to pile pressure on inflation. The situation in the Middle East has reduced the odds of a rate cut by the Bank of England. At the same time, Germany's 10-year bond yield also rose by 20.5 bps to 2.86%, as the market continues to assess the possibility of higher inflation in the region, which is largely a net oil importer amid the conflict in the Middle East. This has increased prospects for tighter monetary policy in the region.
- Japan's 10 year bond yield climbed to 2.17%. If the situation in the Middle East is prolonged, it may have ripple effects on Japan's economy. Investors will be paying attention to the Bank of Japan's policy path as economies navigate this unprecedented situation.

- The US dollar rebounded, evidenced by the US dollar index, which gained by 124 bps to close at 98.86 bps on Friday, registering weekly gains against major currencies. The euro lost 166 bps with the pair ending the week at 1.162.
