AIB-AXYS Weekly Fixed Income Note

16th March 2026

Key Highlights

- Spot market Treasury bills were oversubscribed, recording a subscription rate of 182.3%, albeit lower than 418.4% recorded the previous week. Demand remained skewed towards the 364-day paper, which received KES 30.87Bn in bids against KES 10.00Bn offered, underscoring sustained investor preference for longer-tenor instruments amid relatively attractive yields. The 91-day paper also recorded moderate uptake, attracting KES 4.98Bn in bids against KES 4.00Bn offered. In contrast, the 182-day paper underperformed, receiving KES 7.89Bn against the KES 10.00Bn offered.
- The 91-day Treasury Bill rate registered a 1.59 bps w/w downtick to 7.56%. Meanwhile, the accepted average yields on the 182-day paper rose by 2.41 bps, whilst the 364-day paper eased to 8.48%.
- In the results from the reopened FXD1/2019/020 and FXD1/2021/025, the government registered a performance rate of 195.72% with total bids received amounting to KES 117.43 Bn against a target of KES 60.00 Bn. The total amount of accepted bids was KES 60.99 Bn. The weighted average rate of accepted bids for FXD1/2019/020 and FXD1/2021/025 was 12.7475% and 12.9489%, respectively (slightly below our competitive bidding range recommendation), while the coupon rates for the bonds were 12.8730% and 13.9240%, respectively.
- The government announced a bond switch. The source bond is FXD1/2021/005, with a coupon rate of 11.2770%, maturing on 9th November and an outstanding amount of KES 66.08 Bn. Authorities are seeking to switch KES 15.00 Bn. The destination bond is FXD3/2019/015, which has a tenor to maturity of 8.3 years and a coupon rate of 12.3400%. This market operation falls within the government's plan to reduce near-term fiscal pressure.
- Across the secondary bond market, the value of bonds traded increased 13.2% w/w to KES 80.95 Bn from KES 71.49 Bn recorded a week prior. The NSE Bond Index witnessed a decrease of 128.93 bps w/w to 1,192.03 points, driven largely by an increase in the 20-year benchmark yields. The 20-year yield rose the most by 82.86 bps w/w, while the 2-year yield eased the most by 46.79 bps w/w.
- Yields on Kenya's Eurobond papers increased by an average of 33.37 bps w/w, partly pressured by the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. The table below shows the performance of the Eurobond papers.

Macroeconomic Developments

Exchange Rate

- The Kenya Shilling depreciated against the USD, closing the week at KES 129.30 from KES 129.20 the previous week, a marginal w/w depreciation of 0.1%. The Shilling's YTD depreciation against the USD stood at 0.2%.
- Official forex reserves decreased by 0.9% w/w to USD 14,461 Mn from USD 14,597 Mn. The current reserves now offer about 6.2 months of import cover, meeting the CBK's statutory requirement of 4 months. The reserves also met the EAC's convergence requirement of 4.5 months of import cover.

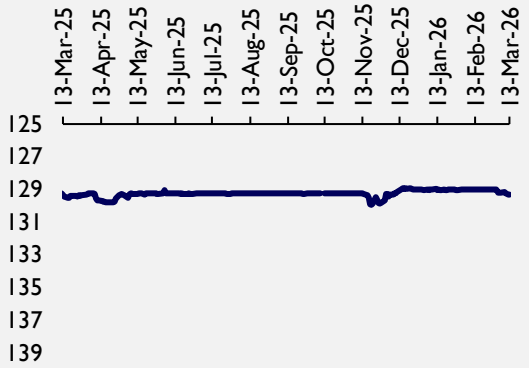

Liquidity

- The Kenya Shilling Overnight Interbank Average (KESONIA) closed the week at 8.66%. Going forward, we expect KESONIA to move largely in line with the CBR rate, following further narrowing of the interest corridor to 50 bps from 75 bps.

EPRA Pump Price Review – March 2026

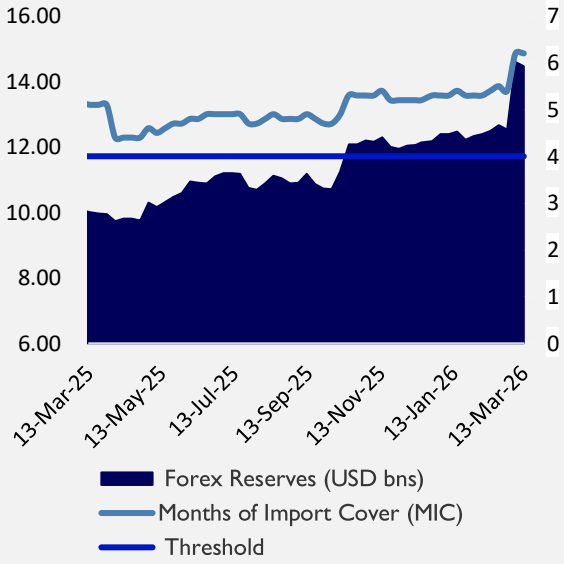

- The Energy & Petroleum Regulatory Authority (EPRA) has released the maximum retail pump prices for the period 15th March 2026 to 14th April 2026, maintaining prices at the same level recorded in the previous review cycle.
- In Nairobi, Super Petrol, Diesel and Kerosene will continue to retail at KES 178.28, KES 166.54 and KES 152.78 per litre, respectively.
- Despite the stability in retail prices, average landed costs increased during the review period. Super Petrol rose by 1.00% to USD 582.11 per cubic metre from USD 576.34 in January 2026. Diesel increased by 8.46% to USD 636.45 per cubic metre from USD 586.80. Kerosene rose by 6.79% to USD 639.48 per cubic metre from USD 598.82.
- EPRA noted that the pricing calculations were based on petroleum cargoes received and discharged between 10th February and 9th March 2026, with most cargoes reflecting February international pricing benchmarks.
- The regulator also indicated that recent geopolitical developments in the Middle East have not yet been reflected in the current pricing cycle, as the cargoes considered were priced earlier.
- Going forward, pump prices are expected to remain relatively stable in the near term, supported by currency stability. However, upward pressure may emerge should global oil prices rise further amid geopolitical tensions and supply disruptions.

AIB-AXYS Weekly Global Markets Note

16th March 2026

• Global Markets Commentary

- Hemorrhage on Wall Street entered its third week as flare ups in the Middle East showed no signs of easing. At the beginning of the week, the market reacted positively to comments by US President Trump indicating that the war would come to an end sooner. Stocks closed higher, with the S&P 500 and Nikkei rising by 0.8% and 1.0% respectively, while oil prices retreated. However, attacks on oil vessels by Iran in the Gulf region reignited investors' concerns, sending stocks lower while oil prices rebounded. Brent crude breached USD 100.0 per barrel for the first time since August 2022.
- The Strait of Hormuz remains virtually impossible to navigate after the newly appointed leader of Iran, Mojtaba Khamenei, called for the closure of the strait. The closure of the Strait of Hormuz has dire consequences, which might keep oil prices elevated, considering that almost 20.0% of global oil passes through it. To contain the looming risk to oil prices, members of the International Energy Agency decided to release 400 Mn barrels, which should partly offset pressure on oil prices. Key to note, escalation of the conflict in the Middle East may feed into the global economy, particularly by piling pressure on inflation and economic growth.
- On the data front, the US Core PCE, which is a less volatile measure of inflation that excludes food and energy prices, rose to 3.1% in January from 3.0% in December, suggesting that the Fed will keep rates on hold.

- Global equities closed lower for another week, dragged by the conflict in the Middle East. In the US, the S&P 500 and the Dow slipped 1.6% and 2.0%, respectively, closing in the red for the third consecutive week. Economic data released on Friday weighed on sentiment after GDP growth for Q4 2025 was revised down to 0.7% from the earlier 1.4%, pointing to a slowing economy. This gave investors reason to worry, adding to the uncertainty created by the conflict in the Middle East.
- Across Europe, stocks closed lower for another consecutive week on the back of the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. In the UK, the FTSE 100 lost 0.2%, representing an outperformance compared to peers that recorded deeper losses. GDP growth data also weighed on sentiment after stagnant growth was reported in January. Recent developments in the Middle East have continued to lower the odds of easing by the Bank of England amid the potential for increased inflationary pressures. At the same time, German stocks also edged lower, evidenced by the DAX benchmark shedding 0.6% for the week. The index was weighed down by losses in the industrials and construction sectors.
- In Asia, the Nikkei and Hang Seng closed with weekly losses of 3.2% and 1.1%, respectively. It is important to note that the Asian region is likely to be affected by the conflict in the Middle East because of its reliance on oil imports, although China has been accumulating oil stocks over the years, easing some pressure related to supply disruptions.

• Fixed Income:

Bond	Current	Previous	w/w change
US 10 Yr Bond	4.28%	4.13%	▲ 14.9bps
UK 10 Yr Gilt	4.77%	4.57%	▲ 19.8bps
Germany 10 Yr Bund	2.99%	2.86%	▲ 12.5bps
Japan 10 Year Bond	2.25%	2.17%	▲ 7.9bps

Source: Investing.com, Bloomberg, AIB AXYS Research

- For a second consecutive week, bond yields rose across the board. The US 10-year bond benchmark climbed by 14.9 bps to settle at 4.28% on Friday. As oil prices rebounded, inflation concerns were reignited as the conflict in the Middle East showed no signs of de-escalation. The Fed is expected to keep rates steady in the upcoming meeting, with rate cuts expected in the second half of the year.
- Across Europe, the UK's 10-year Gilt rose 19.8 bps to 4.77% as investors continue to weigh the country's monetary policy path. There are increasing prospects that the Bank of England might actually initiate rate hikes later in the year amid concerns over higher inflationary pressures stemming from the conflict in the Middle East. During the week, investor sentiment was also weighed down by discouraging economic data that showed GDP remained stagnant in January, falling below expectations of 0.2% growth. Turning to Germany, the 10-year German Bund rose 12.5 bps to 2.99%, the highest level since October 2023, as inflation concerns continued to increase expectations for rate hikes by the European Central Bank.
- In Japan, the 10-year bond yield closed at 2.25%, 7.9 bps higher on a weekly basis, largely impacted by the conflict in the Middle East, which showed little signs of easing.

• Currencies:

Currency	Current	Previous	w/w change
AUD/USD	0.6981	0.7030	▼ (70bps)
USD/JPY	159.730	157.800	▲ 122bps

US Dollar Index	100.36	98.98	▲ 140bps

Source: Investing.com AIB AXYS Research

- The US dollar extended its winning streak against a basket of currencies, evidenced by the US Dollar Index, which gained 140 bps. The euro lost the most, declining by 174 bps, with the EUR/USD pair closing at 1.0036. The conflict in the Middle East favored the dollar, which is viewed as less energy sensitive compared to other currencies such as the euro. Key to note, the US is a net oil exporter compared to Europe and Asia, which are net importers.
